

Modern Landfill Spotlight

November 11, 2021

With local businesses, our success is important to their success, too

YORK, Pa. (Nov. 11, 2021) – Modern Landfill is grateful for the strong and lasting relationships we have established in the community, especially with our neighbors and the local businesses that rely on us.

We recognize that our success is important to their success, too.

“The landfill itself is really important to us,” said David Simon, owner of MetalTech Recycling LLC in Lower Windsor Township. “We really need them for a product that one truck can deliver 10 to 12 truckloads a day. If the landfill wasn’t here, then we’d be going to another landfill, which we could only haul maybe one or two truckloads a day.”

Learn more about the value Modern Landfill brings to the entire county in this accompanying podcast featuring Tim O’Donnell, General Manager at Republic Services, which has owned and operated Modern Landfill since 1999.

Modern Landfill has been in operation in York County for nearly 50 years. And, because of its partnership to accept ash residue from the York County Resource Recovery Center, the landfill serves the entire York County population, more than 400,000 residents, as well as businesses large and small.
